Price Three Cents

GENERAL PRICE REDUCTION IS NOW PREDICTED

BY TREASURY DEPARTMENT ECONOMIST FOLLOWING FORD PRICE REDUCTION

(United Press)
Washington, Sept. 23.—A general price reduction of many necessities will be forced by the act of Henry Ford in cutting prices on automobiles. Wm. M. Lewis, treasury department economist, said today.

Lewis also said slashing of automobile prices would result from Ford's action.

As an example of some commodities which may be forced down in price by Ford's action Lewis named agricultural machinery, stoves, household hardware, waterproof clothing and building material.

"These are made from steel, rubber, lumber and leather, which enters into the manufacture of automobiles," Lewis said. "If automobile makers using high priced steel can cut prices, it is clear that manufacturers of other products based on steel can do the same."

"All automobile manufacturers lately have noticed that orders have slackened. Ford reported unfilled orders totalling 145,000. Other manufacturers also have unfilled orders. But they were received weeks ago. The public has stopped buying automobiles at the present prices, just as it has stopped buying high priced shoes, diamonds, jewelry and the like."

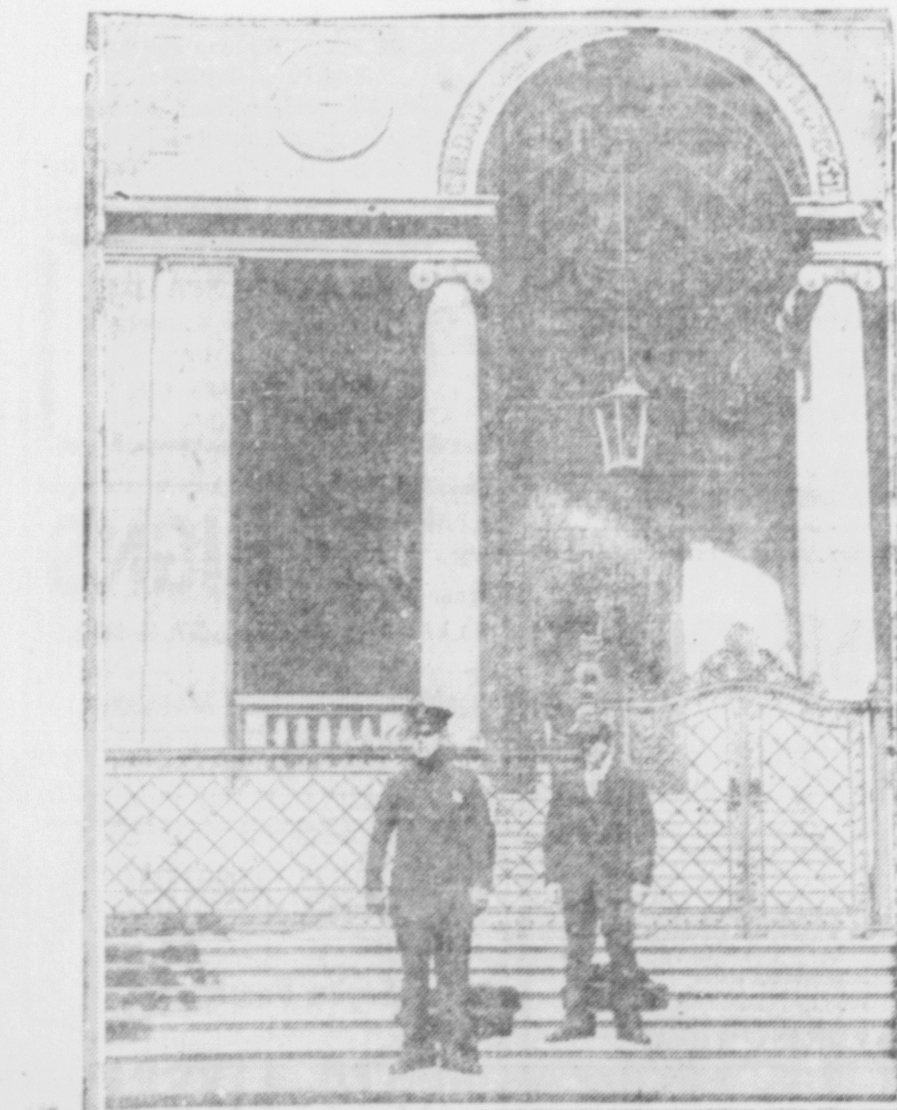

Catalogue Houses Reduce Prices
Chicago, Sept. 23.—Price cuts of from ten to twenty per cent on many articles of merchandise in the newly issued catalogues of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery-Ward & Co., effective immediately, followed the announcement of Henry Ford that he had lowered prices of automobiles to pre-war level.

Drop in Lumber Prices
St. Paul, Sept. 23.—Retail lumber dealers here are now working on a new price list to be announced about October 1 which will show material reduction in prices, it was announced today. This follows the trend of the wholesale market which began to drop recently, it was said.

SPREADING RAILS THROWS THE TRAIN FROM TRACK—CRAWL THROUGH WINDOWS

HERBERT WALKER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Maricopa, Ariz., Sept. 22.—Governor James M. Cox's stumping campaign was back on the right of way early today, headed for Albuquerque, New Mexico, after a serious shakeup near here late yesterday when the governor's special train was derailed.

The governor escaped uninjured but he was thrown about in his car when the special hit a spot where the rails had spread. Engineers Nichols was the only man injured, although the track was spread for a distance of thirty yards. Members of the party crawled through the windows of the coaches to safety.

The wreck necessitated a detour through Maricopa and Demingo. Cox was expected to reach Albuquerque at noon today, where he will resume his schedule.

Campaign Investigating Committee Continues Hearing Today

L. C. MARTIN,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 23.—The senate campaign investigating committee today called Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, to answer charges that political propaganda in favor of Governor Cox's candidacy had been spread through "School Life" the bureau's publication.

Senator Kenyon referred to the editorial in School Life on September 1 concerning Cox's interest in education. Claxton said School Life had attempted to present impartially the position of both candidates on the education question.

"We printed extracts from the republican and democratic platforms, and material on education in letters from Harding Coolidge, Cox and Roosevelt," said Claxton, "as part of our plan to improve schools by creating interest in public affairs."

A speech by Representative Fess, chairman of the republican congressional committee, statements by officials of the American Federation of Labor and the League of Women Voters were other political items printed, Claxton said. Letters from republican and democratic governors on education and other public issues also were printed, Claxton testified.

LANSING-ISHII AGREEMENT GIVES U. S. POSITION

(United Press)

Washington, Sept. 23.—The state department, in negotiating with Ambassador Shidehara, of Japan, will maintain the position of the United States as set forth in the Lansing-Ishii agreement, it was said today. By this agreement Japan voluntarily undertakes to prevent her citizens from coming to this country. The department, it was made clear, will do its best to avoid a conflict in negotiations which are brought about by Japan's protest against a California state law prohibiting land holding by Japanese.

It was suggested that in event the negotiations fail to settle the California controversy, the Japanese might have a recourse in the American supreme court in an effort to overthrow the California law as unconstitutional.

IRISH QUESTION NOT FOR U. S. TO OFFICIALLY CONSIDER

RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Marion, Sept. 23.—The Irish question is not one for America officially to become involved in, however widespread sympathy for that people may be among individuals in the United States, Senator Warren G. Harding said in a statement today.

There is a widespread sympathy in the United States for Irish independence, Senator Harding declared, but he added that America has already meddled abroad excessively without invitation. Harding's statement was an explanation of a cable interview from him appearing in the London Press supposed to report the republican candidate saying the Irish question is a British domestic affair.

Some very good stuff was brought out, Replogle declared in summing up testimony of Ban Johnson, president of the American league; Chas. Coniskey and Wm. Veech, presidents of the Chicago clubs and sport writers.

Replogle today refused to give the names of the players involved. He said a dozen grand jury indictments would result, but hoped the attending publicity would purge baseball of uncleanness.

ENTER "AERO-PLANE REPORTER"

(United Press)

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 22—The "Aeroplane reporter" is here. He is a member of the staff of the Baltimore Evening Sun and he flies a bi-plane, recently purchased by that paper, as a regular part of its news gathering equipment. The "air reporter" is Lieutenant William D. Tipton, former United States Army aviator, who shot down seven German planes and one boche balloon on the French fighting front. He also was captured and held prisoner for a time by the Germans.

The Evening Sun purchased the plane to test out its practicability for quickly covering important news events at points in Maryland and neighboring states not easily accessible by train, boat or automobile, and also for taking unusual pictures.

Lieut. Tipton on September 4, flew thirty-five miles out to sea off the Delaware coast in an effort to photograph the submarine S-5, but the sunken craft was between 55 and 70 miles out and Tipton had positive instructions not to go more than 20 miles out, because of the inability of an airplane to "land" on water.

Aerial photographs of all sections of Baltimore have been taken from the plane and printed in the photograph section of the Sunday Sun. Among other photographs made was one of a train wreck and another of the battleship fleet in the Annapolis harbor.

One of the important uses for which the plane is intended is the covering of news events on the Eastern shore of Maryland. The geographical location of Baltimore in relation to points on the Eastern shore makes the gathering of news there by staff writers slow because of the time required to reach any of the towns by ordinary means of travel. With the plane in operation, practically every place on the Eastern shore by flying time is within an hour or so of Baltimore.

Tit for Tat.

The late Archbishop Benson once had to face criticism of the clergy as a body. It was urged that the bishops ought to see that better candidates were brought to them for ordination. Benson, with good humor, replied: "Well, you see, we bishops find ourselves in a difficult position, as we have only the laity to choose from."—London Morning Post.

MRS. ROBINS WILL NOT SPEAK HERE

Rev. Fred Errington of the First Congregational church, who had invited Mrs. Raymond Robins to speak for him on Sunday morning next, and had asked the pleasure of entertaining Mrs. Robins at the parsonage, received a telegram yesterday morning which read: "Regret exceedingly national committee sending me elsewhere. Deeply appreciate your invitation.—Raymond Robins."

On this change of plans relative to Mrs. Robins' speeches in this state, the Minneapolis Journal of Sept. 22, says:

Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the National Woman's Trade Union league, who comes to Minnesota for the first time to speak particularly to employed women under the auspices of the state republican women's speakers' bureau, will make her only public address in the state in Minneapolis at the Auditorium Friday at 8 p. m. She has been obliged to cancel the other engagements in the state because she was called to Marion, Ohio, to confer with Warren G. Harding.

Speaking in her place at meetings planned for today, Mrs. W. W. Remington, president of Minneapolis Women's Republican club, is in Rochester and will go to Mankato to speak again tonight.

Mrs. Remington probably will fill Mrs. Robins' other engagements in the northern part of the state.

Junior Missionary Club

A group of about twenty girls met last evening at the home of Miss Alma Molgren and organized a "Junior Missionary Club." The following officers were elected:

President—Alice Regina Johnson.
Vice President—Myrtle Johnson.
Secretary—Norma Hagberg.
Treasurer—Alice G. Johnson.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Prohibition enforcement, as everybody knows, is lax, or at least ineffective, in some parts of the country. The chief cause of this is doubtless to be found in the peculiar public attitude which, after approving on the whole, of the prohibition amendment and legislation, takes no special interest in their observance. Nearly all the responsibility is left to the federal organization to make the Volstead act effective, and that organization is not equal to the task.

United States Prohibition Commissioner Kramer, in a recent statement, gives much light on the subject. Congress appropriated $4,500,000 to be used for enforcement, but $750,000 of it is used to enforce the anti-narcotic laws, leaving only $3,750,000 to control the illicit liquor traffic. It is not possible, with that sum, to maintain a force of more than 1,000 officers. That is not enough, in the present situation, when it is necessary at the same time to prevent the illicit manufacture of liquor and to guard against the improper distribution of the vast amount left over when the dry amendment went into effect.

Even a much larger force of federal officers could not prevent abuse and defiance of the Volstead law in communities where there is no local co-operation.

"Many states," explains Mr. Kramer "have no state prohibition laws. That is true in the admittedly wet states like New York and Pennsylvania. In such cases when arrests are made the cases have to be handled in federal courts exclusively. The dockets of many federal courts are now clogged. In New York alone we have now about 3,000 persons awaiting trial."

"As prohibition becomes more generally accepted and the state and local laws more nearly conform to the federal law, many of these cases will be handled as police court cases, and the dockets of the federal courts will be relieved."

Such state and local laws are essential, if prohibition is to be enforced uniformly throughout the nation, as every federal law should be. An effort should be made to obtain them promptly wherever they are not already provided. It is absurd to impose the whole burden of upholding the law on the federal government when the infringements are, in nearly every case, purely local offenses, and could properly be handled by the local authorities.

If the local community is not in sympathy with the federal enforcement law, that makes little difference. The logic of the situation points just the same to local co-operation. If the law is unjust, the surest way to get it changed is to enforce it.

VICTORY MEDAL IN CITY

W. E. McMahon First to Receive This Recognition of Service for Country

W. E. McMahon, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, allowed the Dispatch to examine his victory medal. This medal has on one side a representation of "The Winged Victory," and on the other the names of all the countries participating in the world war. Around the top of this side of the medal there is the inscription: "The Great War of Civilization." And beneath this the U. S. shield bearing the letters "U. S."

The ribbon to which the medal is attached carries clasps, one clasp or bar being granted for each engagement in which the recipient took part. Mr. McMahon's ribbon carries clasps for the following engagements: Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, Meuse, Argonne and Defensive Sector which represents Belgian operations.

The young man who saw so many engagements has reason to be proud of his possession of this recognition of his service. He served with the First Gas and Flame regiment.

TRIALS OF THE REPORTER

As Experienced by Rev. Fred Errington While Substituting for Mr. Hoffbauer

The cub reporter on the Dispatch, who has been substituting for John A. Hoffbauer during his four days' vacation, will welcome the veteran news-gatherer back to his accustomed desk and duties. His substitute is prepared to tackle almost anything once and, after the memory of the first experience has worn off, perhaps a second time; but if he were asked to continue at some things indefinitely, while his memory vividly portrays the many details of the daily grind, he would not unadvisedly, lightly or wantonly enter upon the tasks until he had reverently, discreetly and soberly thought the matter over.

During these four days the reporter has gone to the depot to meet the trains, and as he had looked over the many passengers in-coming and outgoing, he has asked himself, and sometimes he has asked others, "Who's who?" In seeking information on various matters, he has found himself asking, "What's what?" He caught himself turning into the wrong doorway, and the question bobbed up, "Where's where?" When the time for the paper to go to press had arrived and some of the items were not ready, he looked at his watch and questioned, "When's when?"

He has come to the conclusion that the questions, Who? What? Where? and When? face the reporter when he arises in the morning and remain with him when he retires for the night; and he would not be surprised to hear that a regular reporter asks them in his sleep.

The other fellow's job usually seems a cinch when we look in on it from the outside, but the news-gatherer's job is no cinch when seen from the inside of the newspaper office; nor is the task of the one who reads the proofs any sinecure.

Your substitute welcomes you to your regular place, Mr. Hoffbauer, with the hope that you have enjoyed your vacation, and with a very definite knowledge of what it means to provide the copy for a daily paper.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS MEETINGS

Held Yesterday in the Washington School Were Well Attended and Greatly Enjoyed

MANY OUTSIDE WOMEN PRESENT

Program as Published Carried Out. The Papers and Address Being Exceptionably Able

A large, attentive audience of women attended the afternoon meeting of the League of Women Voters at the high school gymnasium Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting opened with a piano solo by W. F. Palmer, of the Palmer School of Music, who graciously responded to an encore.

Miss Kneubuhl then gave an interesting talk on "Women of the Home in Politics" the gist of which was that since politics had invaded home, and now regulated its ice and milk supply, its sewage and sanitary surroundings, controlled the education of the children, and affected the well being of the whole family, women must become interested whether they would or not. If they would safeguard their homes they must take an interest in politics. They must see to it that the trend of community thought was for the upbuilding of the home, and the rearing of healthy, intelligent children in a moral environment.

As it was impossible for the cast of the comedy, "Voting Day" to be present, a lively question box was substituted.

Miss Mary Tornstrom read an interesting paper on "Making Citizens in Our Public Schools", in which she pleaded for more co-operation from the parents in providing safe and sane amusements for these citizens-in-the-making, outside of school hours.

Miss Ruth Mitchell, chairman of the Sixth District then presided at a business meeting which the temporary organization of the League was made permanent, with Miss Anne Severance of Crosby as county chairman, Mrs. A. C. Weber, of Brainerd, chairman, Mrs. Ellingson, of Ironton, Secretary, and Mrs. E. H. Jones, of Brainerd, treasurer. Mrs. J. A. Thabes was elected chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, and Mrs. W. C. Cobb, chairman of publicity.

The out-of-town delegates had been asked to bring their lunch, and fifteen of these were served coffee in the domestic science dining room with Miss Hilda Weimar presiding. This was pronounced out of the most delightful features of the one-day meeting.

Among the out-of-town delegates were the following: Mesdames David and Herbert Archibald and Misses Margaret Miller and Hattie Reiley, of Bay Lake; Mesdames Robert Archibald, Martin Ness and Miss Adele Coffin, of Deerwood; Mesdames A. R. Holman, F. A. Knights, and J. P. Bakken, Pepuot; Mesdames Harriet Blake, Patek and E. W. Kaley and Mrs. Earle Dally, of Hubert and Miss Anne Severance, of Crosby.

The Evening Meeting

The meeting of the League of Women Voters, held in the high school auditorium last evening, Wednesday, Sept. 22, was largely attended. The program was of a high order, and the audience appreciated the splendid manner in which the speakers handled their subjects.

In speaking on the subject "League of Women Voters," Miss Ruth Mitchell of St. Cloud, outlined the work of this organization. The speaker showed that the purpose of the League is to educate women in the duties devolving upon them through their enfranchisement and to stimulate interest in matters of government. Through this League there will come a unifying of the efforts exerted through numerous organizations in the past which will have an influence upon legislation.

Miss Mitchell outlined the ambitious and forward-looking program of the League. This program includes such interests as these: Care for childhood, safe-guarding maternity, prohibiting child labor, limiting the hours that some women are unjustly required to work, to make education compulsory in all states, to secure the civil status of women in states where it is not granted by legislation, to secure laws guarding the property rights of women.

In concluding, Miss Mitchell asked the audience to give the League of Women Voters, their moral and financial support.

William Hodson, Director of Children's Bureau of the Board of Control, spoke on the subject of "Child Welfare." The speaker gave an instructive talk on the work of his department. He outlined the work of those in charge of this matter in the state. In every county of the state Boards are organized to handle this

O. J. Bouma Will Shortly Take Over Dry Cleaning Department from Model Laundry

O. J. Bouma informed the Dispatch this morning that on or about the 15th of October, he intends to go into business under his own name in this city. At that time he will enter the dry-cleaning, dyeing and hat-blocking business. Before coming to Brainerd he was the manager of the dry-cleaning department of one of the largest establishments of that kind in the northwest. For some time he did business along this line under his own name in Minneapolis.

PREPARING FOR TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION

Woodhead Motor Company Has a Force of Emergency Men Here Unloading Cars

AND PREPARING THE GROUND

For the Big Demonstration of Tractors and Implements by the Ford Motor Co.

A Ford emergency force arrived in the city on Tuesday night and yesterday and today have been unloading Fordson tractors, Ford cars of all kinds, and Ford implements, and are setting them up and are getting them ready for the big Ford demonstration on Friday, the 24th inst.

They are also preparing the ground on the Britton farm on Oak street, one and one-half miles east of the city, where the demonstration will occur. Every farmer in the county who has felt the help shortage should be in attendance and see the Fordson tractor plow, disc, seed, thresh, cut wood, bale straw, pull stumps, cut grain and do all kinds of useful farm work.

Everything will be free and all are urged to attend. A free lunch will be served.

No sales will be made on the ground. The demonstration will be purely educational, showing how farm work can be simplified and made easier.

Ford Prices Reduced

To cap the climax the Ford Motor Co. has just announced a reduction in prices on all their products including all makes of their cars, trucks and tractors to practically pre-war prices. This action will be greatly appreciated by the people, but seems to be in line with the Ford practice of extreme efficiency at the lowest possible price.

Eastham Guilty—Sentence Suspended

In the case of the State vs. Gus Eastham which was up in municipal court yesterday, the defendant was found guilty, but sentence was suspended for 60 days pending the good behaviour of the defendant.

The trouble resulted through two families living in one house which led to unpleasantness, culminating in a quarrel during which the defendant took up a twenty-two caliber pistol and aimed it at Frank Stangel who had refused to get out of the house as demanded by the angered man.

HIGH N. P. OFFICIALS IN CITY

Were Escorting Representative of Czechoslovak Government Over N. P. System

The train arriving from Duluth this morning carried prominent officials of the Northern Pacific railroad. Among these were General Manager J. M. Rapelje, Chief Engineer H. E. Stevens, the superintendent of the Duluth Division, H. J. Strachan and others.

These high officials are traveling on a special car for the purpose of affording information to Lieutenant Colonel B. O. Clupek who is traveling through the United States as a representative of the Czechoslovak government. The colonel is inspecting terminals, bridges, tunnels, and engineering features in general. He arrived in San Francisco on the eleventh day of July, 1920, and has visited Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, and points in Montana including Butte.

This representative of a foreign government, with the officials of the railroad, left the train at Brainerd during the morning and were over some of our streets in an automobile.

The X-Ray and Chiropractic

The Chiropractor spends month after month for three years perfecting the sense of touch in his fingers so that he may correctly ascertain the location of each spinal segment in the patient's back. Even with his adeptness at locating these misaligned or subluxated vertebrae he is sometimes baffled; and to prove conclusively to himself that he is absolutely correct in his findings, he resorts to the X-ray. By taking a radiographic picture of the patient's spine, he is not only enabled to actually see the exact conditions as they exist, but he is also able to show the patient that condition.

DANGER SEEN IN CUBA'S ELECTIONS

ELECTORAL LAWS DRAFTED BY U. S. TO PREVENT BLOODSHED—HAVE FIRST TRIAL

A. L. BRADFORD
(Staff Correspondent United Press)
Washington, Sept. 22.—The state department here is awaiting the presidential elections next November in Cuba with an interest probably second only to the presidential elections in the United States the same month.

While the choosing of an American president will decide the future foreign policy of the United States, the elections in Cuba will determine whether the Cuban electoral laws as drafted by the United States government are to prevent abuses and bloodshed in the selection of a chief executive in Cuba.

Although requested to do so by the Liberty party, the American government has decided not actually to supervise the elections in Cuba. It is stated officially, however, that the fact that "the United States may again be called upon by the Cuban people for a decision regarding the fairness of the election, makes it incumbent upon the government of the United States to use all available means to observe the conduct of the electoral procedure in Cuba."

As is usual in Latin-American politics, intriguing interest of romance and adventure attaches to the impending selection of a president of Cuba.

The two main candidates in the Cuban elections are General Jose Miguel Gomez, of the Liberty party, and Alfredo Zayas, candidate for the Coalition League; while General Rafael Montalvo is trying to establish his candidacy as the selection of the Conservative party.

The Conservative party in Cuba, on August 27, formed a coalition with followers of Zayas, who was the candidate of the Liberty party for the presidency in 1916. By accepting Zayas, the Conservative party threw over General Montalvo, who already had been proclaimed as the Conservative candidate for president. General Montalvo now claims that he was ousted from the candidacy through fraud and intrigue and that he still considers himself the Conservative candidate. He has taken his case before the central elections board and says that if necessary he will bring it before the supreme court of Cuba.

This complicated political situation is more bizarre by the following "lineup": President Menocal is supporting the candidacy of Zayas; in the election of 1916, Zayas as the Liberal candidate opposed the present Cuban executive; the present Liberal candidate, General Gomez, led the armed revolution against President Menocal after the 1916 election in support of the candidacy of Zayas; General Gomez is now opposing Zayas, at present the candidate of the Coalition League.

The United States government is earnestly solicited that there be no repetition after the impending election of the revolution following the election of 1916.

The Cuban election laws drafted by Major General Enoch H. Crowder, judge advocate general of the United States army, and who mobilized America's great draft army in the world war, were brought into use in the election of 1912 and 1916. In March of last year, at the invitation of the Cuban government, General Crowder again went to Cuba to make a final draft of the electoral law, with a view of preventing a recurrence of certain abuses which had been practiced in the previous elections. This work was completed by the Cuban congress in August, 1919. The November elections constitute the first real test of the American-written electoral law for Cuba.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS MEETING

work, which they do with varying degrees of efficiency in conjunction with the State Board of Control and Public officers.

He stated that the work of the Board in Crow Wing county in conjunction with the Probate Court and other public officers is painstaking and efficient, and is classed by his office as among the very best in the state. The speaker added that this statement was not made because it was complimentary but because it is true.

Mr. Hodson suggested that while supervision should be under someone having authority, it could not be successful unless decentralized, so that the people in every community share the responsibility.

The speaker, whose experience qualifies him to give an opinion on this subject, affirmed that social diseases cannot be controlled by an appeal to fear.

"The Jury System"

Judge Walter F. Wieland, addressing the meeting on "The Jury System" read the statutory definitions of grand jury and petit jury. He then ably and tersely traced the development of trial by jury from the time of the Magna Charta down to the present day.

Judge Wieland pointed out that the right to trial by jury is guaranteed by the constitution of the United States, and by the constitutions of the several states of the Union.

The speaker voiced the opinion that women are not eligible as jurors in the State of Minnesota, even though the right to vote has been conferred upon them. In support of this opinion he affirmed that the statute says that the petit jury shall be a body of twelve men, and the grand jury a body of men numbering from sixteen to twenty-four.

Judge Wieland indicated that any qualified voter is subject to jury service, with the exception of those who are unable to understand the English language, and those who are exempt on occupational or other grounds.

With a view to defining the duties of jurors—grand and petit—the speaker read the oaths required of them.

In concluding, he affirmed that the right to trial by jury—a right dear to Anglo-Saxon peoples and their heritage—should be and is closely guarded by the courts.

Miss Emily Kneubuhl, speaking on "Political Parties," ably traced the growth of the political parties in the United States. She pointed out that the Constitution of the United States was written by men who were actuated by good motives, but who like other men, were influenced by personal opinion, self-interest and environment. As finally drafted it was the result of many compromises. She showed that Thomas Jefferson was the ardent champion of State rights, and that Alexander Hamilton, a brainy man, advocated a strong federal government.

In tracing the course of the development of the parties, the speaker explained that up until near the time of the Civil War the Democrats were in almost complete control, with the exception of two administrations, and that from then on the republicans have been in control with the exception of two administrations. Lincoln was elected president of the U. S. because of a split in the democratic party and Woodrow Wilson was elected in 1912 because of a split in the republican party. The history of parties shows that when they have had uninterrupted power through a long period they tend to become reactionary, and this in the past has resulted in a split in the party.

Miss Kneubuhl stated that she believes that in popular government there is room for just two parties, and that when other parties spring up as the result of some popular demand the things for which the new party stands are taken over by the old parties when they have been supported by the voice of the people. In other words, in a popular government the voice of the people can find its best expression through the old parties.

The speaker urged the audience to study the history of, inspiration, of and accomplishments of political parties, and advised the ladies to get into one of the parties. She also advised those present to read the articles of the League of Nations, to avoid snap judgments, and to refuse to be guided in decisions through reading the head-lines of the newspapers.

Mrs. Mal Clark sang beautifully, winning the appreciation of her audience, and Mrs. Walter F. Wieland was congratulated because of the skillful manner in which she accompanied the singer.

A Clever Rescuer

By WALWORTH NIXON

"Well, I've made my choice," announced Miss Lavinia Merton, aged forty, a typical old maid from the coiffure of ages past to the flat sole and low-heel footwear of a generation ago.

Three pairs of eyes viewed the speaker both eagerly and anxiously. They belonged to the grownup "children" of the Doane family—Estelle, Myra and Cyril. The two first named were married and settled in life, Cyril was single. They all lived in the old home the widowed mistress of which had died a year previous. It was then that at a family convalesce an arrangement of co-operative companionship was agreed on. The two married couples and Cyril divided the budget of expense and sent for Aunt Lavinia to act as housekeeper.

She was neat, economical and active. Cleanliness was her hobby and orderliness her living principle. Half sister of Mrs. Doane, she assumed a certain guardianship over her grown-up charges as if the care had been left to her as a heritage. Almost unconsciously nieces and husbands and nephew fell into a tacit obedience to the ways of the exacting and at times mandatory severe taskmaster. She had made herself a blessing to the disrupted household, however, and they held their peace when she demanded strict discipline as to meal hours and those of rising and retiring.

"Aunt Lavinia is good as gold," observed Estelle one day to her sister, "but it is really a relief to get a change of atmosphere during our month at the seashore."

"Yes, but she may wish to go with us," remarked Myra.

"I hope not," said Estelle, but the very next day Aunt Lavinia announced that she had decided to close up the house during July and spend the month with someone of the "three children," if she would be welcome. "You are going to Portland beach, Estelle, and you to Royal Sands, Myra. Well, I don't like the strong sea air. You told me you were going to spend two weeks at Clear lake, Cyril. That just suits me. I'll keep you company."

The sisters were filled with secret joy. Cyril Doane looked dumfounded. The charge of his old relative during his annual period of recreation was not at all welcome. Her constant presence would involve a devotedness to whims and wishes that would spoil his vacation. For a moment his face fell and his eyes were clouded. Then with a brave smile he conquered his real feelings. A realization of all the kindness and self-sacrifice of this sterling, worthy woman entered his soul.

"Aunt Lavinia," he said gently, "I shall feel it a proud honor to give you the time of your life. You deserve the best on earth and I shall devote myself to seeing that you get it." "You delightful big boy!" enthused Miss Merton, with tears in her eyes. "No wonder I love you as if you were my own son!"

Cyril did not tell his relatives, but he had an object in selecting Clear lake as a vacation spot. The season before he had met there quite informally among a group a Miss Vera Blake. He had never before been so impressed and a memory of her fair face had remained with him. He understood that she came to the lake annually and hoped the opportunity would materialize to renew the acquaintance.

Cyril saw to it that Aunt Lavinia was surrounded by every comfort at the resort hotel. Miss Blake had not arrived, but Cyril heard, was expected with her mother during the week. His favorite recreation was canoeing. Aunt Lavinia accompanied him several times, and one afternoon had come as far as the beach and had placed in the canoe her umbrella and a wrap, when she said:

"I am so timid on the water in a storm, Cyril, and I think we are going to have one."

"Not before we have finished one trip," declared Cyril, but as a lady invariably set in her opinions Miss Lavinia returned to the hotel and Cyril started out alone.

Miss Lavinia's prediction came true an hour later. The wind blew and the rain fell, and Cyril was making a hasty dash for the shore when he noticed a canoe nearly half a mile off shore contending vainly with the rising elements of the tempest. He could make out a form feminine apparently in a whirling craft. Then it capsize and the imperiled being, whoever she was, clung desperately to the overturned canoe.

Cyril could make no progress against the baffling winds, but a quick suggestion came to him. He seized Aunt Lavinia's umbrella, outspread it, and with this unique sail was borne through the water straight toward the spot where the accident occurred.

There was a double glory of heroism and delight when he had lifted the victim of mishap from her dangerous position, for she was Miss Blake, the lady of his thoughts—the entrancing lady of his choice, as he decided before his delightful vacation had come to an end, for the unexpected episode of rescue made him precious and beloved in the eyes of the peerless Vera.

He kissed Aunt Lavinia with warmth and tenderness the day he became Vera Blake's fiance, and she thrilled and quivered when Cyril told her that but for her umbrella he might never have won his life's happiness.

Making Glass of Rice Husks.
Experiments have been carried out in Burma with the idea of utilizing the silica content of paddy, rice husks, in the manufacture of glass. On burning the husks about 18 per cent of white ash is obtained, and, although this ash contains small quantities of iron, it has been proved to be suitable for the manufacture of glass having a pale green or yellow color. In burning the husks sufficient heat is generated to carry out the various processes.
